I came home to find quite a pile of mail & among it another letter from the proposing gentleman.
He gives further particulars about himself, but I like him none the better, in fact I think now he is entirely crazy. He says he is descended from fifteen soldiers of the revolution, in some ways from Mayflower passengers, in twenty more from the Ark. He encloses the World clipping which I enclose.

The other clippings Sally sent me.

Dear Tim -

It was to follow your suggestion that I have tried during these last six years, to hold up my head, so if, when, or when, I have succeeded you may take the credit to yourself.

I was a good deal of a flop when you said it & the advice was needed & good.

It was nice to see you today only there was so much I wanted to say & could not -
